INTRODUCTION

R. L. POLK & CO., publishers of more than 750 city, county, state and national Directories, present to subscribers and the general public, this, the 1951 edition of the Indianapolis City Directory, which also includes Beech Grove, Broad Ripple, Rocky Ripple, Speedway City, University Heights and Woodruff Place.

Confidence in the continued growth of Indianapolis' industry, population and wealth, and in the advancement of its civic and social activities, will be maintained as sections of this Directory are consulted, for the Directory is a mirror truly reflecting Indianapolis to the world.

The enviable position occupied by R. L. POLK & CO.'S Directories in the estimation of the public throughout the country, has been established by rendering the best in Directory service. With an unrivaled organization, and having had the courteous and hearty cooperation of the business and professional men and residents, the publishers feel that the result of their labors will meet with the approval of every user, and that the Indianapolis Directory will fulfill its mission as a source of authentic information pertaining to the community.

Seven Major Departments

The seven major departments are arranged in the following order:—

THE MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT, pages 13 to 25, on white paper, presents lists of city, township, county, state and federal officials; statistical review; and manufacturing, trade and civic surveys.

THE ALPHABETICAL LIST OF NAMES of residents and business and professional concerns is included in pages 29 to 920, on white paper. This is the only record in existence that aims to show the name, marital status, occupation and address of each adult resident of Indianapolis and vicinity, and the name, official personnel, nature and address of each firm and corporation.

THE BUYERS' GUIDE, preceding the Classified and separately paged from 1 to 148, on goldenrod paper, contains the advertisements of leading manufacturing, business and professional interests of Indianapolis and vicinity. The advertisements are indexed under headings descriptive of the business represented. This is reference advertising at its best, and merits a survey by all buyers eager to familiarize themselves with sources of supply. In a great commercial and industrial center like Indianapolis, the necessity of having this kind of information immediately available, is obvious. General appreciation of this fact is evidenced by the many reference users of this City Directory service.

THE CLASSIFIED BUSINESS DIRECTORY is included in pages 1073 to 1175, on yellow paper. This department lists the names of all business and professional concerns in alphabetical order under appropriate headings. This feature constitutes an invaluable and indispensable catalog of the numerous interests of the community. The Directory is the common intermediary between buyer and seller. As such it plays an important part in the daily activities of the commercial and professional world. More buyers and sellers meet through the Classified Business Directory than through any other medium.

THE POSTAL ZONE GUIDE, on pink paper, follows the Classified Business Directory and is separately paged from 1 to 10. This section is reproduced verbatim from copy supplied by the postal authorities.

THE GUIDE TO STREET-CAR, BUS AND TRACKLESS TROLLEY LINES follows the Postal Zone Guide and is separately paged from 11 to 13, on pink paper.

THE DIRECTORY OF HOUSEHOLDERS, INCLUDING STREET AND AVENUE GUIDE, on pink paper, follows the Guide to Street-Car, Bus and Trackless Trolley Lines and is separately paged from 15 to 310. In this section the numbered streets are arranged in numerical order, followed by the named streets in alphabetical order; the numbers of the residences and business concerns are arranged in numerical order under the name of each street, and the names of the householders and concerns are placed opposite the numbers. The names of the intersecting streets appear at their respective crossing points on each street. Special features of this section are the designation of tenant-owned homes and the designation of homes and places of business having telephones.

Community Publicity

The Directory reflects the achievements and ambitions of the community, depicting in unbiased terms what it has to offer as a place of residence, as a business location, as a manufacturing site and as an educational center. To broadcast this information, the publishers have placed copies of this issue of the Directory in Directory Libraries, where they are readily available for free public reference, and serve as perpetual and reliable advertisements of Indianapolis and vicinity.

The Indianapolis Directory Library

Through the courtesy of the publishers of the Indianapolis City Directory, a Directory Library is maintained in the Business Branch of the Indianapolis Public Library, for free reference by the general public. This is one of more than 600 Directory Libraries installed in the chief cities of the U. S. and Canada by members of the Association of North American Directory Publishers, under whose supervision the system is operated.

The publishers appreciatively acknowledge the recognition by those progressive business and professional men who have demonstrated their confidence in the City Directory as an advertising medium, with assurance that it will bring a commensurate return.

INDIANA STATE SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' MONUMENT

Universally admitted to be the grandest achievement of architectural and sculptural art in the world, designed to glorify the heroic epoch of the Republic and to commemorate the valor and fortitude of Indiana's soldiers and sailors in the War of the Rebellion and other wars.

Begun, 1887; completed, 1901; dedicated, 1902; cost, $600,000; diameter of plaza surrounding monument, 342 feet 7 inches; diameter of terrace, 110 feet; height of terrace, 16 feet 4 inches; monument foundation, 69x53 feet; depth of foundation, 30 feet; height of monument, including foundation, 314 feet 6 inches; height of monument from street level to top of statue, 284 feet 6 inches; height of Victory statue, 38 feet; shaft at top, 13 feet 3 inches; balcony, 16 feet.

The balcony, 228½ feet above the ground, is reached by an electric elevator or by stairway consisting of 32 flights—324 steps. On reaching the balcony, visitors look over a beautiful panorama of Indianapolis and vicinity—a delightful view, not surpassed anywhere. Below the balcony is a bronze astragal bearing the dates 1861-1865 on the four sides of the shaft. Midway the monument is a second bronze astragal, emblematic of the Navy, and further down, a third bronze astragal, representing the Army. On the east and west sides of the monument are the two largest groups that have ever been carved out of stone—the one on the east representing War, the other, Peace. On the south front are two heroic statues, each cut out of a huge block of stone; one representing the Infantry, the other an ideal Cavalry Scout. On the north front are the Artillery and Navy representatives, same as on the south. On the east and west sides of the terrace are magnificent cascades, over each of which flow 7,000 gallons of water per minute. With eight immense candelabra and four groups of huge flood-lamps, Monument Place is brilliantly and beautifully lighted. On subordinate pedestals occupying positions in the four segments are bronze statues of Gov. Morton, Gov. Whitcomb, Gen. Wm. Henry Harrison and Gen. George Rogers Clark.

Above the entrance facing the south is the inscription of dedication:

"To Indiana's Silent Victors"

HISTORY AND DEVELOPMENT

Indianapolis is a great metropolis which arose in the wilderness —a city built upon plans made by hardy pioneers bent upon creating a social order as well as a fine state capital.

Today it is a teeming center of commerce and industry, located in a rich agricultural area.

Here, creative genius and the will to enrich the life of every citizen, has developed a vast and balanced wealth of culture and a promise of better things for all who cherish the American Way of Life—freedom and opportunity.

The preliminary 1950 U. S. Census reports gave Metropolitan Indianapolis a population of 549,047, and a population of 424,683 within the city limits.

Indianapolis 131 years ago was a lone cabin in a virgin forest. Today it is a fast-growing metropolis of nearly 550,000 persons . . . a highly-diversified and vitally-important industrial city in the midst of a vast, rich agricultural region.

It is a typically American city in a typically American state . . . the physical, political, economic and cultural capital of a great commonwealth . . . a city proud and grateful for its heritage, industrious, ambitious, and confident of a glowing destiny.

About Indianapolis there is no element of circumstance either in the selection of its site or the design for the original town. And today, as from the beginning, it is a city planned in its development.

The first settlers came here in the spring of 1820. They located at or near the confluence of Fall Creek and White River. A few years earlier trader William Conner had established a thriving trading post (now restored) a few miles northeast, but it was to the south of Fall Creek that pioneers pressing into the new state directed their course from Connersville, Andersontown and other older towns. Andersontown was a village of the Delaware Indians.

Jacob Whetzel and his son came from Andersontown after gaining permission from ruling Chief Anderson to blaze a trace to the mouth of Fall Creek. The white man's treaty with Chief Anderson had given the venerable Delaware control over the entire area for one full year, and Whetzel was meticulous in his determination to observe the treaty.

Perhaps the first family to settle at the confluence of the two streams was that of George Pogue, who brought his wife and children from Connersville and built here a solid double-cabin, then set about clearing a few acres from the wilderness.

STATE HOUSE

MERIDIAN STREET LOOKING NORTH FROM MARYLAND STREET

A little later, John, James and Samuel McCormick came, and the settlement grew.

Meeting at Corydon, the territorial capital, in southern Indiana, the first Indiana Assembly gave to Governor Jonathan Jennings, and a special commission of ten men, powers to select a permanent site for the state capital, and it was Jennings who successfully urged a site as near the center of the state territory as possible. The settlement at the confluence of White River and Fall Creek was viewed, found desirable, and appr d.

By a joint ballot of the House and Senate of the Indiana Assembly, a commission of three prominent men was elected to select a name for the new capital of Indiana. Several names were presented, but the name INDIANAPOLIS, suggested by Jeremiah Sullivan, Judge of the Supreme Court, was accepted with little opposition (INDIANA plus POLIS, Greek for "city").

The same year, Alexander Ralston, who assisted Major L'Enfant in laying out Washington, D. C., was appointed to lay out this new city on the Western frontier.

The plan is a combination of the "spider web" of Versailles and Thomas Jefferson's scheme of the Federal City of regular squares. As first planned, Indianapolis included what is now known as the "mile square"—that part of the city bounded by South, East, North and West streets. In the center of the plat was the Governor's Circle, now Monument Place, which was reserved for the mansion of the Governor. A brick residence was erected there in 1827, but it never was used as a residence.

The first newspaper, The Gazette, appeared in 1822, and in 1825 the Legislature held its first session in the new Capitol. The National Road was cut through Indianapolis in 1830, and in 1836 the town was incorporated. Water power was made available with the building of the canal in 1839, and the city's industrial development began with the establishment of grist mills, woolen mills and paper mills. In February, 1847, the first steam train entered Indianapolis on the Madison Road, an event which foreshadowed the city's development as a great railroad center. The same year a city charter was granted. The nation's first union railroad station was opened here on Sept. 20, 1853.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, Indianapolis had more than 100 manufacturing concerns and rapidly was becoming an important new industrial center. Many of the earliest industries—a meat-packing plant, flour mill, saw works, etc.—continue in business and are today considered among the largest and finest of their kind in the nation.

The period from 1865 to 1873 was one of rapid growth and expansion, when the first street cars were introduced and thousands of new homes, many of them unusually fine, were being constructed.

In 1873 plans were made to build a belt railroad and stock yards. But it was not until 1877 that the belt railroad and stock yards, now the largest stock yards east of Chicago, opened for business.

The stock yards gave great impetus to agriculture, already enjoying a period of thriving development.

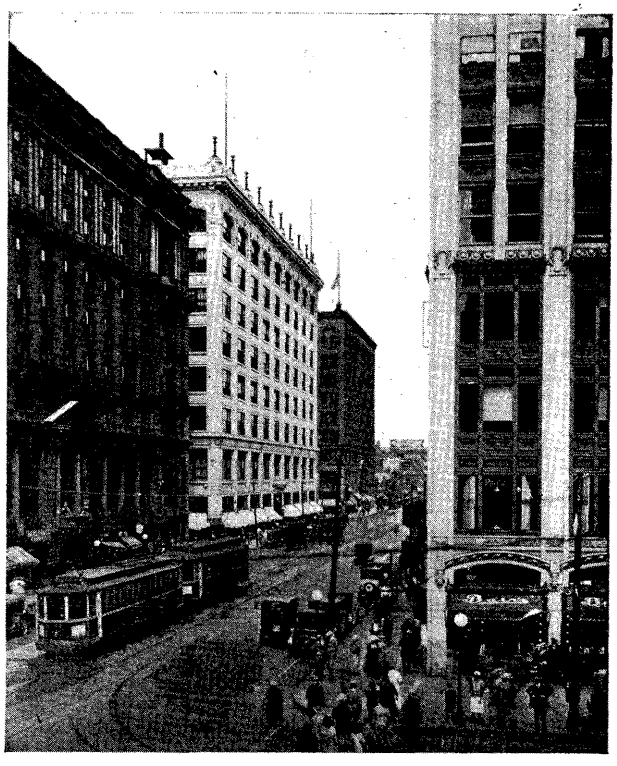
Indianapolis always has been widely known as a city of beautiful homes and extensive home-ownership.

By 1900 the city entered another period of expansion. In that year natural gas was introduced, providing cheap fuel for manufacturing and bringing an influx of new industries. By 1900 the city's population had reached 170,000, the annual value of manufactured products had reached $60,000,000, and the annual industrial payroll was $10,000,000. Development of interurban electric railroads at that time further contributed to the city's growth and importance.

In the first half of the century Indianapolis has had a very steady growth not only in population but industrially, commercially and culturally. Among its manufacturing establishments are several which are the largest of their kind in the world.

So has INDIANAPOLIS evolved, in less than a century and a half, into the fine and friendly and prosperous city it is today.

The largest city in Indiana, it also is the second largest state capital city, and is not only the political capital of the commonwealth, but its physical, economic and cultural capital as well.



The topography and climate of the city are ideal to continued expansion and development. Carved out of the once wooded plains, there are no natural barriers to orderly expansion of its boundaries.

Just 111 years ago—blacksmith shops, sawmills and a small and crude grist mill comprised the total of Indianapolis' industrial activity.

Today, 1951, Indianapolis has 1,100 firms in the industrial category, giving employment to more than 100,000 persons, in civilian goods production.

U. S. COURT HOUSE AND POST OFFICE

NORTH ILLINOIS STREET LOOKING NORTH FROM WASHINGTON STREET

Indianapolis long has been blessed with a wide diversity of industries which increase the unusual economic stability of the entire area. By far the greater number are home-owned, although the city has many large and valuable plants of national corporations.

Acme-Evans Co., with its predecessors, represents Indianapolis' oldest industry, operating four grain milling plants at locations where flour has been milled continuously since 1821.

In 1857 E. C. Atkins & Co., the world's largest manufacturer of saws, was founded. This plant has been in continuous operation by the family of the founder on the site of its founding, although it has spread over a vast area.

In 1863 Kingan & Co. moved its meat-packing plant to Indianapolis. Today this firm is one of the nation's largest and best-known packers of meats and meat products.

Water power was made available with the construction of the canal in 1839, resulting in the building of the first grain mill.

As mentioned above, the first steam train entered the town, on the Madison Road, in 1847, and prior to 1900 development of railroad lines entering the city had been remarkable.

Construction of the railroads, new highways and Kingan & Co.'s pork house—largest in the nation—caused such rapid development of agriculture that in 1875 the new Exchange Stock Yards was built, supplementing Kingan's own yards.

In 1873 the Board of Trade, an outgrowth of expanding grain production, urged construction of a belt railroad and stock yards, combined. But it was not until 1877 that this huge enterprise was completed and in operation.

The twelve miles of belt railroad, linking all railroads entering the city, proved to be a vital stimulant to the establishment of more industries and expansion of existing plants and mills.

Today, the Indianapolis Union Railroad has 76 miles of track connecting all railroads serving the city and hundreds of industries requiring switching service.

Meat packing and processing has grown into one of the city's most important industries, with other firms establishing large and fine plants. In 1949 a total of 3,000,000 head of live stock were sold at the Indianapolis yards, grossing $200,000,000 in sales.

However, metal-working industry—production of parts and finished products—is the city's largest source of manufacturing employment and most important producer of industrial income.

THE CITY TODAY

Throughout the first half of the century there was a continual expansion of the city's manufacturing and processing plants. Development and expansion of utilities—electric, gas and water—together with other service facilities, has kept pace. Favorable rates available here have been an important aid in development of the community's industry.

Today, the great utilities serving the community are investing many millions of dollars in new plant facilities to provide for future needs of the community.

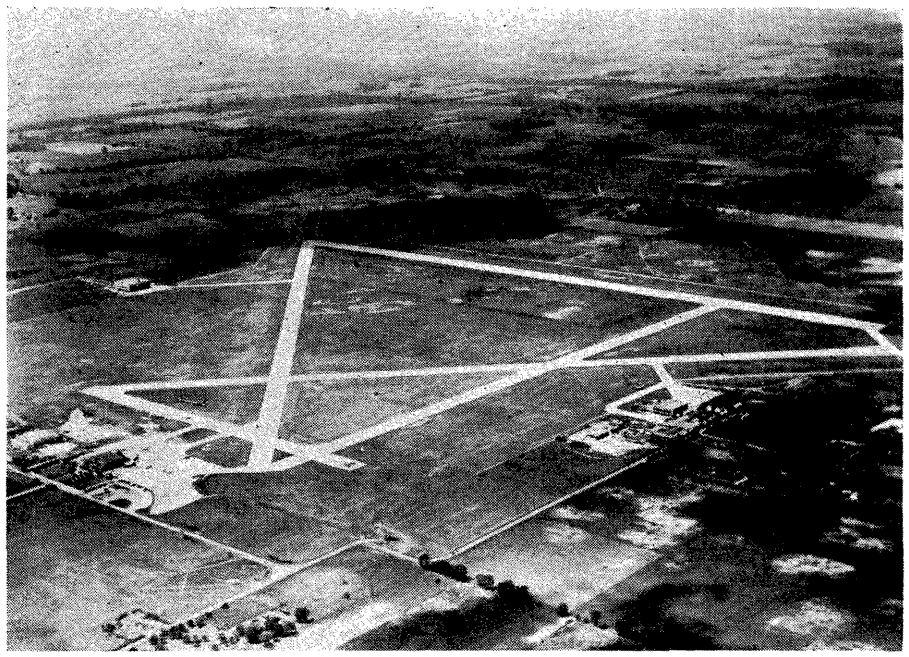
An almost unlimited supply of steam coal is being mined within a radius of 60 to 70 miles of the city, providing inexpensive steam fuel for industrial purposes.

INDIANAPOLIS RAILWAYS

In addition to excellent railroad facilities, a vast network of superior highways and splendid air transportation serve the city.

The supply of labor is much more extensive than population statistics indicate. Manpower from the rural areas, small towns and urban communities within a radius of 25 to 50 miles is available to local industries. Many regularly-employed workers commute daily by automobile and bus.

The topography and climate here are ideal for continued industrial expansion. There are no natural barriers, such as lakes, rivers or hills, to limit or retard expansion in any direction. The altitude—739 feet above sea level—and temperate climate are healthful and advantageous to business and industry.



The city's location, near the exact center of the nation's population, and position between other metropolitan cities, also are helpful to industry.

Among the larger Indianapolis home office industries, not previously mentioned, are: J. D. Adams Mfg. Co., American Foundry Co., Inc., Diamond Chain Co., Inc., Fairmount Glass Works, Inc., Inland Container Corp., Insley Mfg. Corp., Kahn Tailoring Co., Eli Lilly & Co., P. R. Mallory & Co., Inc., Marmon-Herrington Co., Inc., Metal Auto Parts Co., Inc., Real Silk Hosiery Mills, Inc., Stokely-Van Camp, Inc., and Zenite Metal Corp. (All of the above normally employ more than 500 in their Indianapolis plants.)

Among the many national corporations operating important manufacturing plants in Indianapolis are: American Can Co., American Stove Co. (Federal Foundry Co.), Armour & Co., Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., Bemis Bro. Bag Co. (2 plants), Best Foods, Inc. (shoe polish and "Rit" dyes), Borden Co. (2 plants), Bridgeport Brass Co., Bryant Heater Division, Affiliated Gas Equipment, Inc., Continental Baking Co., Cornell-Dubilier Electric Corp., Peerless Pump Division, Food Machinery & Chemical Corp., General Motors Corp. (Allison Division and Chevrolet Commercial Body), Glidden Co. (2 plants), International Harvester Co., Kroger Co., Linde Air Products Co. (2 plants), Link-Belt Co., McQuay-Norris Mfg. Co., Oval & Koster Division of Messenger Corp., National Biscuit Co., National Malleable & Steel Castings Co., National Lead Co., National Starch Products, Inc., New York Central Railroad Co., Omar, Inc., Pitman-Moore Division of Allied Laboratories, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., RCA-Victor Division of Radio Corp. of America, Richardson Co.,

Corp. will occupy a huge new automobile transmission plant at the edge of Indianapolis.

Trade

Indianapolis is justly proud of its fine retail and wholesale districts. The city's stores and shops are outstanding. In appointments, selection, variety and quality of merchandise and in service given to their patrons, the city's retail establishments rank among the finest to be found in any large city.

Department stores in the downtown area are considered by national retail authorities to be among the nation's best.

Here is located the second largest "exclusively-shoes" store in the U. S.

Products sold at wholesale are greatly diversified, and the extensive wholesale district now serves a vast area extending 70 miles or more in every direction. The population of the wholesale trade area is nearly 1,500,000.

Since the end of World War II, the city's three largest department stores have been extensively enlarged and modernized through new building programs.

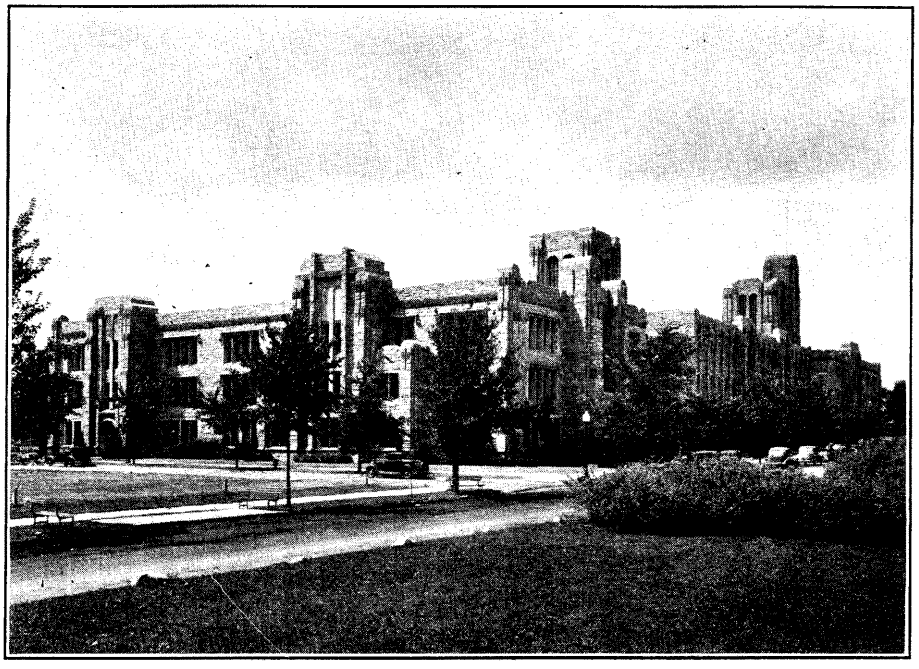
During the same period a very large part of the downtown shopping and financial district has undergone a vast improvement program through modernization of scores of store fronts, building exteriors, and store and office building interiors.

The aggressive Merchants Association and Better Business Bureau, enjoying the co-operation of a large number of the community's business firms, works constantly to insure for those who live and trade here, fair dealing, reasonable prices, and goods that fulfill all advertised promises.

Those who may attempt unfair trade practices in Indianapolis will soon find that they are unwelcome. The stores and shops which value their good reputations, developed from excellent customer relations, thrive and expand, while any who will not conform to good business practices find the spotlight of unfavorable notoriety focused upon them.

Education

Indianapolis, as a community, offers splendid educational advantages in all the usual and many special fields.



Here, beautiful grounds and fine buildings having superior training facilities enhance the pleasure and satisfaction of pursuit of knowledge in fields of letters, sciences, arts, professions and vocations. And, opportunities for education from the pre-school age through the university are practically unlimited.

BUTLER UNIVERSITY

This fine system of schools, libraries and other educational institutions, both public and private, brings all levels of education within the reach of Indianapolis residents.

In this progressive city, public school management is relatively free from any undesirable political influences. The Citizens Non-Partisan School Committee has elevated the selection of members of the public school board above all such considerations.

Here, 23 free kindergartens, well-located, provide pre-school age training. There are 82 public elementary schools, two public special schools, 36 parochial elementary schools, seven public high schools, and six parochial high schools.

More than 42,000 students are enrolled in the public elementary schools. Parochial elementary schools provide for 11,500 more. Of the latter, 10,000 attend the 36 Catholic grade schools. Others are enrolled in Lutheran and the Seventh Day Adventist schools.

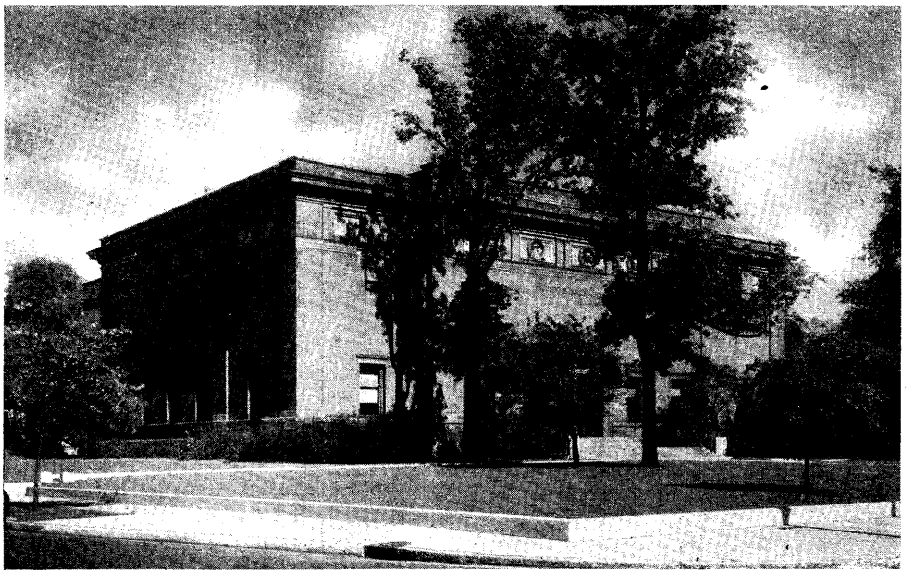
More than 14,000 students attend public high schools.

Outside the city limits the 40 grade and high schools which make up the Marion County school system (Metropolitan Indianapolis) have an enrollment of more than 18,000 students.

Two other incorporated towns in the metropolitan area, Beech Grove and Speedway City, have their own school systems. Beech Grove has approximately 800 enrolled in grade and high schools, while the Speedway City schools are attended by more than 900.

Indianapolis schools are widely and favorably known for the extensive program of adult education they operate, largely in the night classes and in on-the-job training programs.

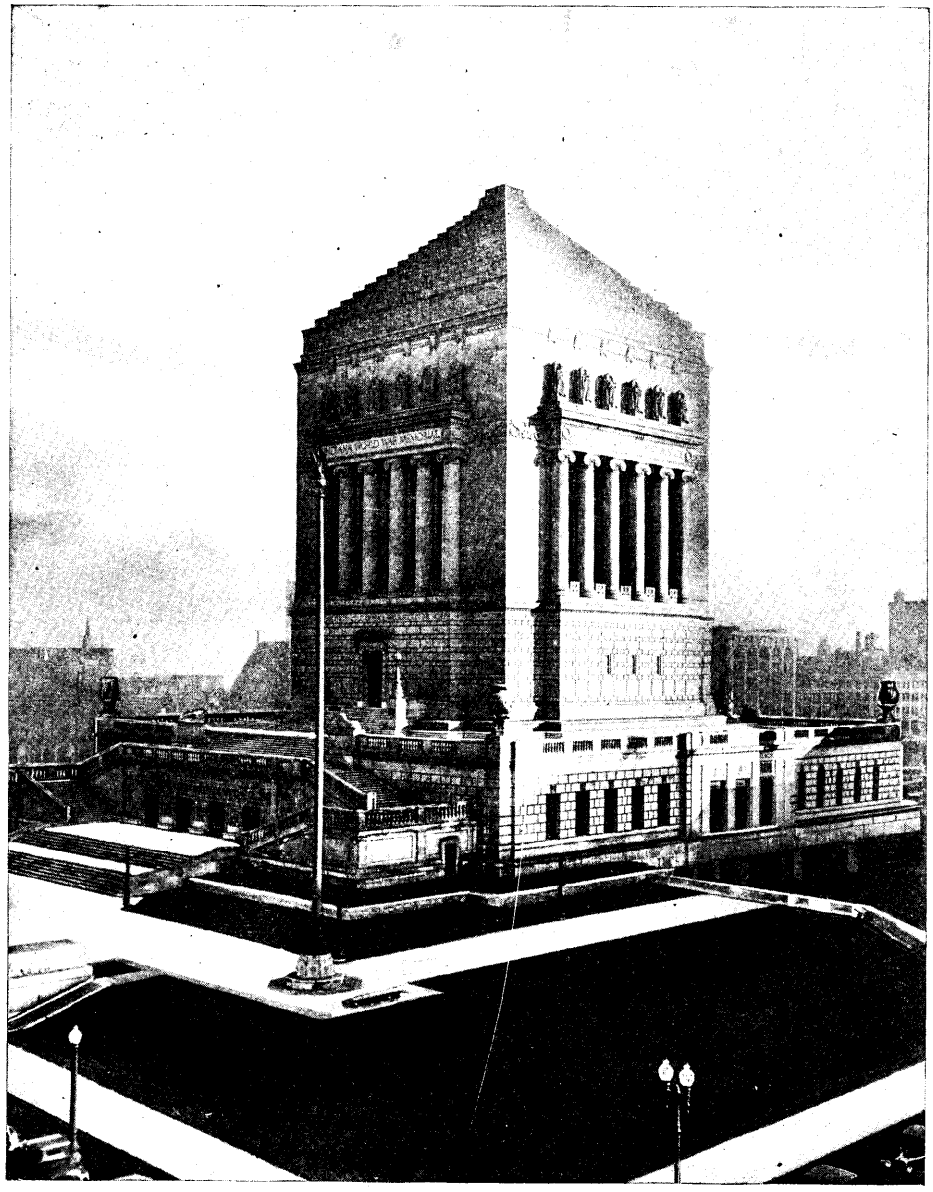
Through the Indianapolis Goodwill Industries and other service organizations co-operating with the City, State and Federal educational programs, an extensive service in training the physically-handicapped in vocational fields is carried on.



Improved teaching methods, high standards for selection of teachers, careful supervision and the alert and active parent-teacher organization have aided in keeping efficiency of the schools on a high level.

The library system is operated by the City school administration. It includes a central library and 21 conveniently-located branches. A State library, also in Indianapolis, houses an abundance of historical and reference material.

A children's museum, one of the first in the U. S., through distribution of educational exhibits and maintenance of a large museum building, serves as a valuable adjunct of the educational system.



The Indianapolis public school system employs 3,000 persons, and has an annual payroll of approximately $10,500,000, and an educational plant valued at approximately $38,000,000.

Butler University, established here in 1855 as the Northwestern Christian University, moved to a beautiful, 246-acre wooded tract in 1923. Today, Butler is an integral part of the community. It occupies three stately and modern educational buildings, and has an exceptional athletic plant, a field house seating 15,000, and a stadium capable of seating 35,000. A fine new building, to house a school of pharmacy, will be completed on the Butler campus in 1951.

JOHN HERRON ART INSTITUTE

The John Herron Art Institute, administered by the Art Association of Indianapolis, is the largest organization of its kind in the state, and recognized throughout the country for the importance of its art collection and the quality of its instruction. It includes an art museum and art school housed in separate buildings. It is supported by memberships, endowment, special gifts and municipal funds. The Art Association was organized in 1883. Through the bequest of John Herron, the present site was purchased and buildings were erected in 1906. The collection of paintings, sculpture, pottery, etc., has grown steadily, and now includes items from all parts of the world. It is located at 16th and Pennsylvania Streets.

WORLD WAR MEMORIAL SHRINE

During recent years, Butler University has recorded an average enrollment of approximately 4,000 students. Instruction is offered in colleges of liberal arts and sciences, education, business administration, pharmacy and school of religion, as well as in the professional fields. Forty-four members of the Butler faculty are listed in "Who's Who in America," in "Who's Who in American Education," and in "American Men of Science."

Butler University's educational plant now is valued at nearly $6,000,000. Plans are under way for additional facilities to be constructed at an early date.

Indiana Central College, incorporated in 1902, is managed by a board representative of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, of the six conference embracing churches in Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The college is recognized by the Indiana State Board of Education as an accredited school. A liberal arts college, it has strong departments in teacher training, music, arts, speech, business, home economics and religion, as well as pre-professional courses. Its physical properties are ideal, and a faculty of approximately forty members provides fine leadership in maintaining high social and moral standards. Since 1945 the college has engaged in an extensive expansion program.

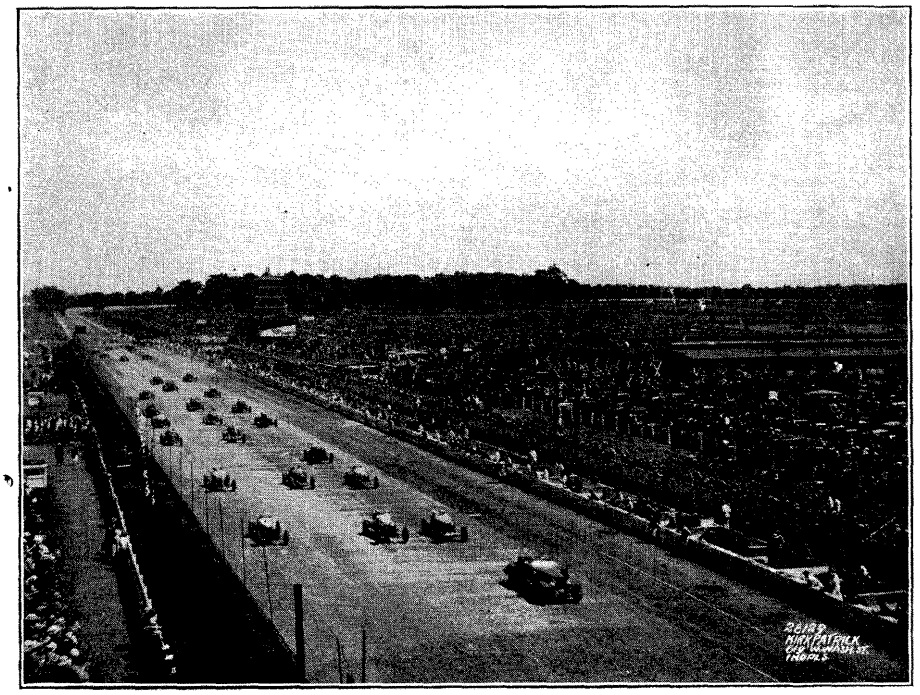
Marian College, a liberal arts college for women, is one of the nation's outstanding schools of this type. Conducted by the Sisters of St. Frances, it is primarily a Catholic college, but it welcomes non-Catholic students. The curriculum of the school is divided into main groups, as: Religion and philosophy, language and literature, natural sciences, social sciences, and fine arts. The college confers degrees of bachelor of arts and bachelor of science.

Sponsors of Marian College have as primary accomplishments those of preparing young women for service to society as teachers and as leaders in church, home and civic life.

The school is located on a 60-acre campus of great beauty, surrounding a private lake, at the edge of Indianapolis.

Indianapolis has numerous preparatory and private schools, and important branches of the two State-owned universities.

Indiana University's famed School of Medicine and branches of its School of Law, Business Administration and other schools are located in the university's large extension division here.



Purdue University conducts, here, in its extension division, many important classes, especially in engineering and technical fields.

Widely and favorably known are John Herron Art School, Arthur Jordan College of Music, Park School for Boys, Ladywood School, Tudor Hall, Orchard School, Indiana Business College and other special schools.

Also, at Indianapolis are located three State schools for blind and deaf persons. These are the Indiana School for the Deaf, the School of the Board of Industrial Aid for the Blind, and the State School for the Blind. Each is a leading institution in its field.

COURTS

There are nine justices of the Supreme Court of the United States and there are ten Judicial Circuits in the United States. One of the Justices is assigned to each Circuit. In each Judicial Circuit there is a Circuit Court of Appeals, and from three to five Circuit Judges in each Circuit, who sit as a Circuit Court of Appeals; and, if necessary, the presiding Judge may have one or more District Judges sit in the Circuit Court of Appeals. There are from one to four Judicial Districts in each State, in each of which there is a District Court, which is held by the District Judge for the District in which he is appointed. Indiana constitutes two Judicial Districts with two judges

This Publication Is The Product of a Member of

—thus assuring you the ultimate service that skill and care can produce in the way of City Directories or other reference media, and providing protection against fraudulent advertising schemes which operate under the name of Directories.

The following "Standards of Practice," adopted at the inception of the Association of North American Directory Publishers in 1898, and strictly adhered to over the years, is your guarantee of satisfactory Directory Service.

The publisher of a Directory should dedicate his best efforts to the cause of business uplift and social service, and to this end pledges himself:

1. To consider, first, the interest of the user of the book.

2. To subscribe to and work for truth, honesty and accuracy in all departments.

3. To avoid confusing duplication of listings, endeavoring to classify every concern under the one heading that best describes it, and to treat additional listings as advertising, to be charged for at regular rates.

4. To increase public knowledge of what Directories contain; to study public needs and make Directories to supply them; to revise and standardize methods and classifications, so that what is wanted may be most easily found, and the Directory be made to serve its fullest use as a business and social reference book and director of buyer and seller.

5. To decline any advertisement which has a tendency to mislead or which does not conform to business integrity.

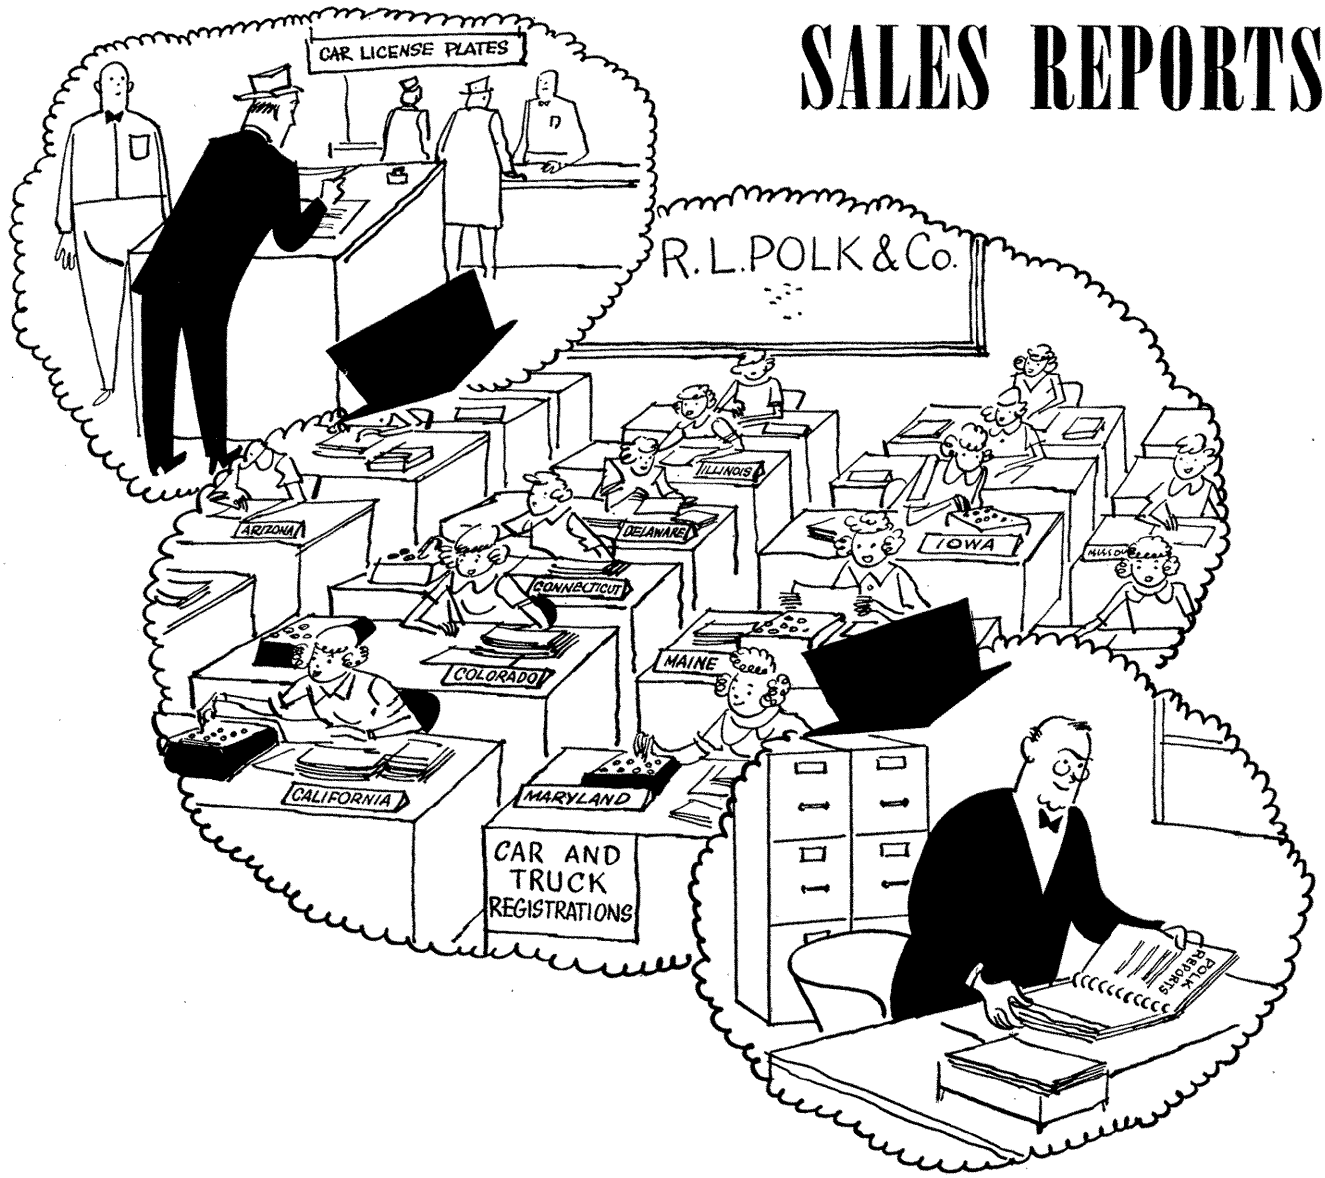
6. To solicit subscriptions and advertising solely upon the merits of the publications.

7. To avoid misrepresentation by statement or inference regarding circulation, placing the test of reference publicity upon its accessibility to seekers, rather than on the number of copies sold.

8. To co-operate with approved organization and individuals engaged in creative advertising work.

9. To avoid unfair competition.

10. To determine what is the highest and largest function of Directories in public service, and then to strive in every legitimate way to promote that function.



$100 Reward will be paid by the Association of North American Directory Publishers for the arrest and conviction of any person or persons engaged in the publishing, collecting or canvassing for any fraudulent or fake directories.

POLK NEW CAR and TRUCK SALES REPORTS

Linking Sales and Manufacturing Statistics

Know how many new cars are being sold each month—where—and when. Use facts to determine sales quotas, to gauge service potentials, to plan profitable manufacturing programs. Use POLK NEW CAR AND TRUCK SALES REPORTS, compiled from official license registrations. Now greatly expanded in usefulness, they give sales totals by makes, by models, by states, by price classes, compared with previous year's sales. Know... at all times... your market potentials. Write for details on this new, comprehensive service.
